Interpreting the Primaries

The primary elections of last week, considering the state as a whole, were as spiritless and as meaningless as any that we can remember. The finest exercise in futility that we can imagine, moreover, is trying to read into the results any auguries for the behavior of the state electorate in Novem-

The partisans are entitled to their little sport as they pretend to find in these fitful returns encouragement for their designs. We are not impressed. No man who doesn't pretend to magical powers can divine a state's intention or predilection from such a scattering, desultory performance.

Those who are interested in the health and vigor of the democratic idea, we believe, could more profitably reflect upon the meaning of the indifference that has been shown cumulatively over the years to our open primary elections. Some of the news dispatches have guessed that only a quarter of the eligible vote of the state turned out last Tuesday. That is a generous estimate. The performance was worse. Perhaps one vote out of five or more of the maximum was tallied. Our calculations show us that there are now at least 2.400,000 men and women in this state of voting age and otherwise eligible, perhaps as many as 2,500,000. A half million voter turnout is no less than a warning signal that the ideal of popular nominations is

Our own calculations on the basis of the new census figures also leads us to the guess that there are at-least 150,000 new voters in Wisconsin this year, above those who turned out in the last presidential election year. It might be supposed that in these exciting times most of the newly enfranchised young citizens would eagerly hasten to the polls. But if any significant fraction of them did so last week, it makes the paltry total vote look even more dole-

A part of this phenomenon is sheer indifference in the populace, as shown by the fact that we sometimes have final elections with turnouts of only 50 per cent of potential. Perhaps there isn't much to be done about it. Surely we can have little confidence in the schemes of those who would cajole and drag voters to the registration places. We don't need more voters. We need more responsible voters.

But a deeper difficulty is the evident indifference toward the popular nomination process as such, or perhaps an ignorance or a misunderstanding of its operations. Half a century ago the direct primary was an epochal achievement. The pioneering Wisconsin legislation echoed around the world in a chorus of admiration and envy. We wonder what the fathers of the idea would think today if they could observe the utter indifference of four out of five of their posterity.

When Is Speech 'Incitement'?

Justice Henry Epstein of the New York State Supreme Court has dismissed a petition by George Rockwell to compel the city of New York to grant him a permit to speak in Union Square. Rockwell leads the American Nazi party and has accused some 2 million Jews and a half million Negroes and Puerto Ricans of treason.

Justice Epstein based his decision on the point of view that "it is not within the reasonable scope of the Bill of Rights amendment here relied upon to loose self confessed advocates of violence upon a community at a time and a place where it is inevitable that public disorder and riot will result. This court cannot agree that the constitutional guarantee of free speech encompasses such an invitation to public disorder, violence and even incitement to murder."

No reasonable person would want to side with Rockwell who already has been arrested and fined for leading anti-Jewish rallies which ended in brawls. But the line between free speech and "shouting fire in a crowded theater" is very thin. The New York Civil Liberties Union, rigidly opposed to fascism, backed Rockwell's petition.

The right to present unpopular opinions must be upheld in this country whether they range from atheism to anarchy. But Rockwell is urging violence as well as distasteful points of view. He is an agitator, a hatemonger, whose apparent aim in life is to arouse race and religious prejudice to the point of violence. But there are other forms of agitation. The publication, Common Sense, hysterically anti-Semitic, anti-Negro and anti-just about everything else is as vilely inflammatory as anything Rockwell may say from his shaky soap box. But banning Common Sense would be a dubi-

Justice Epstein probably is right that allowing Rockwell to speak in Union Square presents a public danger that overrides his free speech rights. But the decision is on dangerous ground as a precedent.

His Wife's Clothes—a New Political Issue

Political philosophies, national issues, poweriui irienas, religious prejudices all may have their bearing in the coming presidential election. But let no one forget that women have a vote and right now a lot of them are pretty concerned about a common interest - clothes.

Mrs. Kennedy has been accused of being "fantastically chic" and buying her clothes in Paris. Some women are indicating that her maternity clothes are even too chic.

But Mrs. Kennedy has snapped back that Mrs. Nixon sometimes buys Count Sarmi gowns from Elizabeth Arden and they retail from $500 to $1.000. There is the suggestion that Miss Arden, whom Mrs. Kennedy says is a Republican, even let From then on I watched the Mrs. Nixon have a fabulous ball gown at cost. This sort of thing could blow up into a deep-freeze, or vicuna coat scandal.

Whatever the final outcome, it is a discussion which men enter at grave peril. They should take the advice of a lifelong bachelor on that score. Henry Thoreau noticed that "clothes introduce sewing, a kind of work which you may call endless.

"A woman's dress, at least, is never

Futile Colonialism

Ever since Indonesia proclaimed its independence from Holland, there has been a controversy over the ownership of West New Guinea. Holland continues to claim it and says its status has nothing to do with Indonesia. Indonesia insists it belongs to Indonesia although it has less reason for claim than the Dutch. No one has seriously bothered to ask the few inhabitants of West New Guinea who wouldn't know what the argument was about for the most part any-

This summer Holland, mostly in an effort to revive respect for its gunboats and authority, send an aircraft carrier, two destroyers and an oil tanker down to West New Guinea. It was a silly move and at least a generation too late. The Dutch didn't even try to go through the Suez Canal for fear that Nasser would turn them down. The handful of obsolete planes unloaded in West New Guinea weren't worth the trip.

But the actions against the tiny Dutch fleet were pretty silly. Dock workers in Australia refused to handle tug lines to any of the Dutch ships in protest although Australia has virtually unbreakable immigration laws against all but whites. Japan invited the ships to stop at Yokohama to celebrate the 350th anniversary of Japanese-Dutch trade but the same type of howls which prevented President Eisenhower's trip to Tokyo forced a withdrawal of the invitation. Indonesia's Sukarno, meanwhile, screamed "horrid imperialists!" every time he took to a platform.

Colonialism of the Western variety is dead and the West might as well accept it. But the Congo horror, among other incidents, has revealed that independence does not insure bright and happy futures, complete with justice and freedom. If the tyranny of the colonial nations is to be replaced by the tyranny of the mob and the manipulators, progress also is outdated.

> President? Can Richard Nixon or Jack Kennedy supply the inspired guidance Americans long to have? This is the question of the year. In previous times of crisis we have had a Washington, a Lincoln, a Wilson or a Roosevelt at the helm. Who now can measure up to the nation's hour of need? Who can explain to the people in clear and simple language what they must do to preserve and protect their heritage, and lead them to the sacrifices that so unavoidably must lie ahead?

Perhaps the forthcoming campaign debates will give us the clues now lacking.

Former Resident Tells How 'Donna' Blasted and Soaked Orlando, Fla.

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Report on "Donna." On Friday night, Sept. 9, we knew that Donna was going to come close to Orlando.

By 11 a.m. Saturday the winds blowing south and southeast had increased to gusts up to 45 mph. with heavy rain squalls. Orlando stores closed at noon on Saturday to permit employes to get home before the storm hit with full force, and also to get store fronts boarded up. This was done by just about all main stores, restaurants and places of business at considerable cost. By 6 p.m. Saturday the storm was really moving and there was heavy rain. At about this hour the police department declared a 9:30 p.m. curfew. At 3 p.m. the wind was from the northeast, at 8 p.m. it was east, northeast, at 8 p.m. it was east,

Fuzzy Peaches

From this work, protons appear to be like fuzzy peaches, sort on the outside, hard on the inside. Now with a $500,000 magnetic spectrometer, the scientists hope to push deeper into the cores of protons and neutrons, and check fundamental theories about the nucleus and its binding forces.

Stanford and Princeton scientists are cooperating in building a new device to make two electron beams collide and to check theories about laws gov. erning atoms and the nucleus. Electrons from the present machine will collide with energies equivalent to that from a 1,000 BEV linear accelerator.

To open another frontier. Stanford scientists have proposed a 2mile long linear accelerator producing 10 to 45 BEV energies. It would cost about $107 million.

Beams in Collision

At the University of Wisconsin. the Midwestern Universities Research association is building small models for a proposed 15 BEV synchrotron which would cellide two beams of protons, at energy equivalent to one 540 BEV accelerator, to investigate deeper secrets of the proton. In cosmic rays from space.

nature showers down particles reaching energies of millions to a billion BEV. Balloons carrying special photographic plates are sent 20 miles or more high to record their hits and new data about the atomic nucleus. At the California Institute of skirt.

Technology, Dr. Carl D. Anderson and associates are constructing special new counters and cloud chambers to capture and study in the laboratory some of the explosive and revealing "events" created by cosmic rays.

With genius and tools, the search proceeds to make sense of all the particles, and four forces known so far to be involved in the inner universe. These forces are:

The "strong" forces binding atomic hearts together. Electromagnetic forces within the atom, 100 times weaker.

The "weak" reactions which determine how any particle changes or decays into other particles this is perhaps 10 billion times weaker than the electromagnetic

Much weaker still, the gravitational force.

Key to Universe

"Only through these four forces does any particle in the universe know anything about the presence of any other particle, and so to be influenced by it," Dr. Crewe evolains. But therein lies a key to the whole universe.

Nature probably is simpler in her grandeur than now appears from the array of particles and physical laws so far understood, says Dr. Geoffrey Chew of California, one of the theoretical physicists puzzling over the entire problem. Present theorles may have to be revised.

The need, as Dr. Oppenheimer has expressed it, is for discovery of a principle of "immense sweep and simplicity."

Perhaps, says one physicist, "the answer may come from some bright kid, in high school now, who manages to glimpse and understand the whole beautiful pattern."

Q. Of what value is the disability freeze to a disabled person under age 50, if he cannot receive monthly disability bene-

A. The freeze will mean higher benefits if the worker is still disabled at age 50. In addition it will mean higher retirement benefits, or in the event of his death, higher survivor's benefits to his family.

Q. Are women school teachers between the ages of 62 and 65 eligible for social security payments for summer vacation months even though their annual salaries are well over $1200?

A. If the teachers are insured under social security and do not earn over $100.00 in summer months, they may receive social security payments.

Q. I understand a beneficiary under age 72 can earn up to $1200 in a year and still draw all monthly social security checks. Is it possible to make the $1200 in four months or is there an earnings restriction of $100 for each

Diamond Solitaires

Now Only $200.00

Some dealers conduct diamond "sales" by reducing fictitiously high prices.

Regularly $200.00

At Hupka's, you will find that $200 diamond rings are now - and have always been $200.

Fine diamonds are not seasonable merchandise and their prices are constant the year 'round. Furthermore, size (by weight) alone does not determine a diamond's worth. A medium sized diamond of superb quality might easily be of higher value than a considerably larger one of imperfect quality. You get what you pay for.

Your diamond, whether it costs one hundred dollars or thousands, is always fairly and honestly priced when it comes from Hupka's.

Lawrence Says

He Lost Prestige After Destroying Summit Conference

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington - What real procress toward world peace could have been made by Nikita be had been endowed with a fundamental un-

"summit" conference at Paris chance that he might have got-Berlin problem — a revision of the legal requirements for the four allies - and he would have been hailed on both sides of the Iron Curtain as a peacemaker. His prestige certainly would have grown, at least inside the communist bloc.

Seeks Prestige

Why did the Soviet dictator throw away his chances? Was he just a man without the knowledge of Western psychology that he should have had? Did his advisers fail him, or was he too stubborn or egotistic to listen to

As a propagandist and showman, Khrushchev has made dramatic efforts to enhance his own standing, but except for the dictatorship power he wields over a vast empire, he would certainly have no more prestige in the world today than a faltering Lumumba. To have his movements restricted to Manhattan Island is the biggest humiliation any premier of a big country could suf-

To make his attack personal and to belittle the head of a foreign power is about the most senseless tactic a would-be diplomat ever could be guilty of em-

Diplomatic Blunders The people of Russia have had trained diplomats in past his tory, and the Slavic nations as a whole have turned out men who have been skillful in dealing with international problems. But Nikita Khrushchev has broken all records for blundering in diplo-

The Russian people could be plunged into a devastating war by the same capricious man who poses as a friend of peace. His word today is not accepted in the world at large. The pledges he says he will give on disarmament are regarded in advance as worthless. He is wasting his breath at the U.N. General Assembly. If there were a free government in Moscow, another premier would have been elected last May and Khrushchev himself would have been relegated to political limbo.

It is Khrushchev, however, who wields power today in the Soviet Union, and he is trying vainly for a new position of vantage by an ostentatious maneuver at the United Nations. In bringing his henchmen from other countries to New York and endeavoring to give the appearance of a mighty bloc, he is certainly not fooling the free world.

Feared Freedom

The Soviet premier's propaganda is ineffective primarily because of his record of duplicity and deception. After wooing the American president and getting an invitation to come to the United States a year ago, the Soviet boss said that Mr. Eisenhower could come to Russia on a return visit and that television and broadcasting facilities similar to those Mr. Khrushchev enjoyed would be available there to the American president. It was to have been an opportunity for reciprocity on the basis of a new understanding.

But Khrushchev became afraid of what thoughts might be put into the minds of his own people. Although boasting that communism could stand up in any debate against the arguments of the non-communist philosophy of free enterprise and human liberty, the truth is that the Soviet premier was fearful and looked for some way to get out of his promise. He found the excuse in the U-2 incident.

The United States last spring did immediately order U-2 flights discontinued. From a diplomatic standpoint. Khrushchev gained his point. But he didn't have enough knowledge of civilized diplomacy to take advantage of it. Instead, he demolished a diplomatic negotiation of the highest importance and set back the whole situation in a troubled

There is one magic day in the year when a neighborhood sidewalk becomes the high road to adventure. It is that first day of the new school year when homes in every neighborhood send forth their little ones to join the army of starched, well scrubbed bundles of energy converging on the school. Pleasant anticipation runs high because today old friendships will be renewed, "new kids" will be met and tested, and the new teacher will be evaluated to the last detail. The first few days find Mom experiencing a strange awe at the silence in the house. It is a good time for her to ponder the wisdom of putting a Family Want Ad to work, to sell items the family no longer needs, to help defray cost of the new outfits which are at school with the youngsters.
